- Transferable permits will make it possible for an owner to register two cars for the price of one.

- The expiration date on new parking permits is extended until September 15 to allow students renewing their permits time to do so without being in violation.

- Students may now park in the lot north of the Wilkinson Center at 6 p.m. rather than 8 p.m. "We felt that it didn't need to be closed so late," said Harroun.

- Students and faculty need to be aware that an additional $10 citation will be issued to cars remaining parked more than one hour after the initial overtime parking violation (the first citation is $3). The main lots are south of the Wilkinson Center, south of the Widtsoe Building, west of the Richards building, north of the ASB and the west end of the JKHB.

"We are trying to discourage those which feel they can pay a $3 fine in a time space by giving them a $10 fine," said Harroun.

Illegally possessing or using another's parking permit will cost violators $50.

There will also be a new visitor parking lot created just south of the Law School. According to Lytle putting in a new visitor lot has been quite a controversial subject.

The traffic committee will be taking 80 stalls out of the Law School lot for visitors. It was proposed to take 120.

"There needs to be a solution for the problem with visitor parking, but I don't think taking over the lot by the Law School will solve it," said Lytle. "That particular lot is overcrowded as it is and it will create a further burden on that area," said Lytle.

"This has been a problem for several years now," said Taylor. "All the visitor parking is at one end of campus."

In the past years, the traffic office has received many complaints about visitor parking, said Backman.

AIDS education in public schools debated

Topic may be part of health education

By ERIC M. WHITE
Universe Staff Writer

For several years, sex education in public schools has been an oft-discussed issue in Utah. The debate continues unresolved.

Suddenly, however, a new issue has arisen and has ballooned so quickly that many people are calling for immediate action in the educational system.

The issue is AIDS and whether or not curriculum should be developed to educate children about it in the schools.

David G. Weight, a member of the Provo School Board, said that conducting AIDS education in the schools is imperative. "It's a national crisis," he said. "Apparently, the best way we have to deal with it is through education, and we are in the business of education."

Provo School District Superintendent Jim Bergera agrees. "With the level of risk involved, it seems to me that people need information," he said. "When people have information, they are in a position to make intelligent decisions."

This way of thinking appears to be common among administrators in the Provo School district. In fact, according to Bergera, the district has decided as one of its 1987-88 school year goals to review the content of the health education curriculum and consider including appropriate information about AIDS.

The State Health Department is pushing for this kind of activity within the districts. According to Craig Nichols, state epidemiologist, they are recommending that information about AIDS be a part of every school's program of health education. The content of the curriculum, however, is to be decided by each district individually.

Bergera said that within the Provo School District they feel that they must insure that students are educated about AIDS. They are not yet sure, however, what kind of an AIDS education curriculum they would like to implement within the schools.

Randall Merrill, assistant principal at Timpview High School in Provo, feels that AIDS is the No. 1 public health menace in our society and that the topic must be addressed "appropriately" within the schools. He emphasized the word appropriately.

To develop a curriculum which will meet the needs of the students in the area, the school district has organized Couple continue fight for adopted Navajo son

Dan Carter looked at the ceiling and said, "I think we've got some help from somewhere, from up above."

His 10-year-old adopted Navajo son, Michael, thought for a moment and then asked, "What helped us? The light?" The father answered that it was the Lord.

The Carters, who are devout members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, have been fighting to keep custody of Michael, whom they adopted eight years ago.

In December, after the Utah Supreme Court determined the case came under tribal jurisdiction and not state laws, the situation did not look positive to the Carters.

"In a lot of other cases that we've heard about, the Indians haven't gone to the work that they have for this case," Dan Carter said, "they just flat came in and took the kids."

The story about the decision and the controversy, however, hit the news wire and began to snowball. News organizations such as USA Today, the Los Angeles Times, the San Francisco Chronicle and CBS-News' "60 Minutes" have covered the story, and some 50 producers are interested in rights for a movie.

"We think because of the press, we've got a better chance," said Pat Carter, the boy's adoptive mother.

The story began when Michael's aunt, who knew the Carters were looking for a child to adopt, brought him to Spanish Fork, where he has lived since.

According to the Carters, the child lived with his real mother, Cecelia Saunders, for six months and then was raised by a grandmother until he was 2 years old. Pat Carter said they saw signs the boy had been abused.

A few years later, however, Saunders decided she would like custody of her son, and the case entered the courts.

In an interview with KSL-TV's

Prime Time Access, the only one she has allowed, Saunders said she loves Michael and wants to give him a knowledge of his Indian heritage and culture.

It was a desire to preserve Indian culture that prompted Congress to enact a law allowing the tribe, rather than the state, to decide custody of children.

The Utah Supreme Court ruling said the boy, whose Indian name is Jeremiah Halloway, was a resident of the reservation and subject to this law.

The formal trial will be held sometime in August in a court of the Navajo

Hollands endure plane mishap

By MYRON W. LEE
Senior Reporter

Patricia Holland is recovering today from bruises sustained in an aircraft collision Saturday morning in Vienna, Austria's Schwechat airport.

"If you're ever going to be in an airplane crash, do it on the ground," advised President Jeffery R. Holland Monday afternoon in a backyard news conference. Holland, himself limping on an injured left heel, said he acknowledges the hand of the Lord in preventing more serious consequences in the incident.

Harald Kuntner, an official at the Vienna airport, told The Associated Press the right wing of a South African Airlines Boeing 747 sliced into the forward left side of the Boeing 747 of the Jordanian airline Alia as it was preparing to fly to New York. "She (Pat Holland) was sitting at the point of impact," said Holland. "The seat took the impact and shattered. We were both thrown across the plane."

The Hollands were returning from a five-day invitational trip to Jordan, where they explored the possibilities of having BYU Study Abroad students visit Jordan for one to three weeks. The trip was a great success, according to Holland.

"In one week we probably met with half of the Jordanian cabinet," he said. "They accomplished what they wanted," said Holland about the Jordanian dignitaries who desired to build relations with BYU. Leaders of Jordan also "hoped this and other visits like this would open doors in the West for the country," he said.

David M. Kennedy, Ray C. Hillam, Omar Kader, and their wives, were riding in the 747 with the Hollands on the return trip; however, only the president and his wife were near the point of impact. "Of 250 passengers, Sister Holland was the only one injured," said Hillam, director of the David M. Kennedy International Studies Center.

As the South African airliner taxied out to pass the parked Jordanian plane, it sliced a gash ten feet long and about two feet deep into the plane, said Hillam. "Both planes had 200 tons of fuel because they were both ready for departure. My first fear was that the fuel would ignite. There was quite a bit of excitement in our part of the plane, but the pilot assured us that there was no

Syria vows to free American journalist

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syria said Monday it will free captive American journalist Charles Glass "at all costs." Eight people died in factional gunfights in Beirut slums where many foreign hostages are believed held.

Police said 17 people were wounded during shootouts in the Shiite Moslem slums of Ghobeiri, Hay Madi and Haret Hreik between the Mokdad Shiite clan and supporters of Akel Hamieh, military commander of the mainstream Shiite Amal militia.

Neither faction has been linked to abductions of the 25 foreigners still held. Amal leader Nabih Berri, also Lebanon's justice minister, ordered his militia Saturday to join the search for Glass, 36, and Ali Osseiran, 40, whose father Adel is defense minister.

Street battles in the south Beirut slums began at midday, eased at midafternoon and picked up again before sundown, police reported. The sound of gunfire and rocket-propelled grenades could be heard in both Moslem and Christian sectors of the city.

Fourteen men abducted the latest victims last Wednesday, along with Osseiran's driver, in south Beirut's seaside Ouzai suburb. It is a stronghold of the Iranian-backed Hezbollah, Lebanon's most militant Shiite faction.

Brig. Gen. Ghazi Kenaan, Syria's military intelligence chief in Lebanon, was quoted as saying: "I am here to free them. The problem will be resolved at all costs and I believe that will be accomplished soon."

Hi Fi murderer runs out of appeals

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court on Monday ended 13 years of judicial appeal by condemned Hi Fi Shop murderer Dale Pierre Selby, rejecting without comment his final petition to have his death sentence overturned.

Utah Attorney General David Wilkinson said Selby could be executed by the end of August barring intervention by the Board of Pardons, which is Selby's last hope to have his sentence commuted to life in prison.

Wilkinson said during a news conference that state attorneys hoped by Tuesday or Wednesday to obtain a death warrant for Selby, who was convicted in the 1974 torture murders of three people in Ogden's Hi Fi Shop.

The decision marks the second time the justices have declined to hear Selby's appeal in the past two months.

Selby has 10 days from the issuance of the death warrant to seek a hearing before the board, which has authority to reverse the death sentence. His attorney, D. Gilbert Athay, could not be reached for comment.

Germans against extraditing hijacker

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Security sources said Monday fear for the lives of two West German hostages has prompted the Bonn government to decide against extraditing Mohammed Ali Hamadi to the United States for trial on air piracy and murder charges.

U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese III will be in Bonn Tuesday to discuss the case of the 22-year-old Lebanese.

If Hamadi is not extradited, he will be tried in West Germany on murder and air piracy charges, Bonn government spokesman Friedhelm Ost said.

President Reagan said he would be satisfied with such an arrangement.

Hamadi, a Shiite Moslem, was among four people indicted in the United States in the June 1985 hijacking of a TWA jetliner to Beirut. A U.S. Navy diver was killed and other Americans were held hostage for 17 days.

Justice Department spokesman Pat Korten said that in Bonn, Meese would "reiterate the United States' position, which is that, all things considered, we are hopeful they will honor our request for extradition."

Early retirement leaves state shorthanded

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The state's offer of early retirement has left some agencies in the departments of Health and Social Services shorthanded because supervisors have not been permitted to fill all the vacancies, state officials say.

Combined losses from budget cuts and early retirements are costing the Division of Aging and Adult Services 40 percent of its staff.

A total of 113 state Social Services employees will retire under amendments to the retirement law effective July 1. Twenty-eight will retire from the Utah Department of Health, legislative fiscal analyst J. Winslow told lawmakers during a recent meeting.

Under Gov. Norm Bangerter's retirement policy, only 50 percent of the total vacant positions in Health, Social Services or other state agencies can be filled, said Social Services Director Norm Angus. But Angus said negotiations are still under way with the governor and his staff regarding that figure.

Winslow said the actual savings that will be realized under the retirement plan are not yet known.

Chun agrees to meet with opposition

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Chun Doo-hwan made a dramatic reversal Monday after nearly two weeks of violent street protests, agreeing to meet with opposition leaders and consider demands for democratic reform.

His opponents insisted all political detainees be freed before the talks, expected later this week. Police say at least 8,000 people have been arrested since anti-government agitation began June 10 and thousands remain in jail.

The president said he would be willing to meet with Kim Young-sam, head of the Reunification Democratic Party, and other opposition groups and would consider demands for reform. Kim's party is the main political opposition.

Chun's foes demand direct presidential elections, but the former general declared April 13 that his successor would be chosen by the current electoral college system and debate on constitutional change would be postponed until after the 1988 Summer Olympics in Seoul.

There were fewer reports Monday of protests and fights with riot police. Most of the violence occurred at universities.

The forecast for today is sunny in the daytime and clear tonight.

Low temperatures will be in the upper 40's with highs in the low 80's.

UVCC coed claims Miss Utah crown

Marianne Bales, Miss Orem, was crowned Miss Utah 1987 Saturday at the Miss Utah Scholarship Pageant held at Mountain View High School auditorium.

Bales is a student at Utah Valley Community College, where she is studying fashion merchandising with an emphasis on dance. She performed a vocal-dance rendition of "Let Me Dance For You" from the play "A Chorus Line" in the talent portion of the competition.

The new Miss Utah enjoys swimming, tennis, horseback riding and volleyball. She hopes to promote a spirit of volunteerism in her year as Miss Utah. "I have seen a need for volunteers to work in the elementary schools," she said. "We have wonderful teachers, but there are so many children and the teachers just don't have time to spend with those children who are behind or ahead to give them the extra help they need."

Bales has worked in nine schools as Miss Orem teaching dance workshops to fourth-, fifth- and sixth-grade schoolchildren.

The crowning of a new Miss Utah culminated four nights of preliminary competition in the areas of talent, evening gown, swimsuit and personal interviews with the judges.

Although she hoped she would win, Bales said she felt her competitors' talent was "phenomenal. I just wanted to feel that I had done my best. If I didn't win, I would feel OK about it if I'd done my best."

Gina Christensen, BYU student and Miss Spanish Fork, was named first attendant. Second attendant, Miss Salt Lake Valley, Sophia Symko, 20, is a student at the University of Utah. Bales will represent Utah in the Miss American Pageant in September in Atlantic City.

Fred Astaire, 88, dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fred Astaire, whose debonair elegance and flowing, graceful style made him the most acclaimed dancer in movie history, died yesterday of pneumonia. He was 88.

He died at Century City Hospital at 4:25 a.m., said spokesman Stan Otake. Spokeswoman Andrea Hecht said he had been admitted June 12.

"I just got in bed with him and put my arms around him and he died," said Astaire's widow, former jockey Robyn Smith. "He had a very complete and full life. He was a very happy man."

She said at a hospital news conference that his illness began with a cold and worsened, probably because of his age. Asked if he was ready for death, Robyn Astaire replied, "He never prepared himself. He wanted to live. We were so happy." However, she said, despite his will to live, "he accepted the fact that he probably would not make it."

With tears in her eyes, she said it was Astaire's wish to "let you know how much he appreciated his fans."

Fellow veteran movie dancer Gene Kelly said, "Although we have lost one of the greatest dancers who ever lived, Fred Astaire will always be immortal and an inspiration to all dancers who come after us. He was a good, dear friend and a lovely man. God bless him."

"He was the best, the greatest," said George Burns, who with Gracie Allen appeared with Astaire in "A Damsel in Distress." "He was a charming man on stage and off."

First aid important in summertime

ERIC M. WHITE
Universe Staff Writer

During the summer, people often find themselves in situations where a little knowledge of first aid skills could save a lot of trouble.

Don Thygerson, BYU professor of science and author of "The First Aid Emergency Care Workbook," offers suggestions on how to deal with some often-encountered problems.

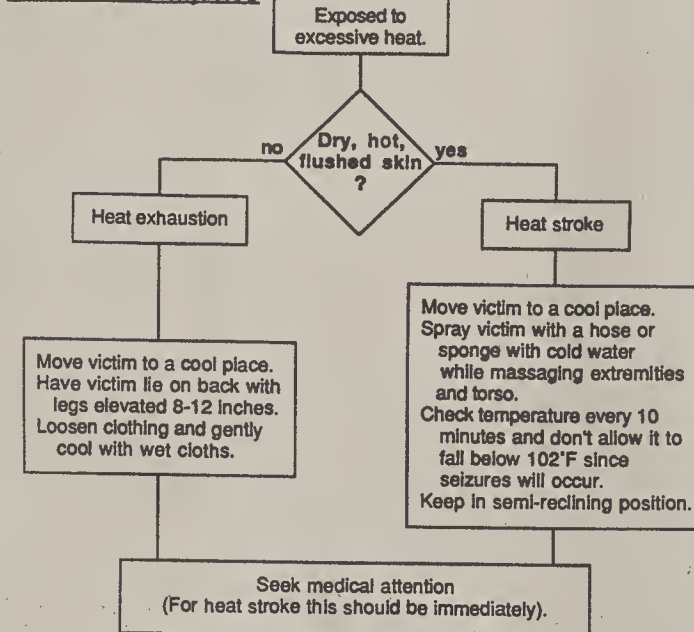

Sunburn: Cool the affected area with water. Tap water is fine. Do not use ice. Take time to reduce pain and swelling. After the pain has stopped, apply a cream to keep the skin moist. If blisters occur, wash the blisters thoroughly twice daily and cover with sterile gauze to prevent infection. Avoid further contact with the sun.

Insect stings (bees, wasps, hornets, etc.): If the insect is a bee and the stinger is still embedded in the skin, scrape the stinger off with a fingernail or knife. Do not squeeze the stinger.

Allergic reactions: If the victim is allergic to insect stings, seek medical attention immediately. Keep the part which has been stung cooler than the heart and apply a constrictor band. Monitor the person's breathing and heart rate.

If the victim is not allergic, wash the sting with soap and water and apply a cold pack for 15-20 minutes. Relieve pain by applying meat tenderizer for 20-30 minutes, or by applying household ammonia or baking soda paste. Keep the part lower force to gather information around the country on AIDS education. The task force's purpose, Thygerson says, is to develop an approved education program which will be reviewed by a district curriculum committee before it is implemented.

The word "appropriate," however, is difficult to define.

A poll taken of 50 people in the area, 47 felt that AIDS is definitely an issue that should be discussed with children in school. When asked the question of how AIDS is discussed, however, there was a diversity of opinion.

Several people felt that AIDS education should contain moral teachings as well as the biological facts about the virus comes from and how it is contracted.

John Stube of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Provo agrees that moral teachings are important, but adds that school teachers are not the ones who should reinforce them, but a teacher's set of values may be the same as those of the student.

Stube asked. That teacher's values would go against what parents and churches are trying to teach the children, he said.

Something that superimposes a judgment needs to be taught in the home and church," said Stube.

Stube disagreed. "Here we've got a moral crisis that requires education," he said. "There is new data about all the time that you can't keep families and homes to keep up with it."

Stube also felt that schools can teach moral and ethical values to the children. He said that it is no longer a question of religious preference, but a matter of responsibility because AIDS victims are dying, and that they have the right to know.

Stube said that schools must teach basic behavior to the children, and in this case where a person's responsible actions can seriously affect others. These kinds of things, he said, do not conflict with religious beliefs, but are a part of all religions.

Some people oppose any sex education in the schools on principle," Stube said. "But we have an obligation now life is at stake. It's a question of whether or not we are going to break a religious tradition that is at stake here."

Another concern voiced by several people surveyed is that through sex education students how to prevent pregnancy using condoms, the schools will be promoting sexual activity by showing children how to use condoms safely.

Bill Beard of the Rockwell Assembly of God feels that a biological discussion of sex and reproduction in schools may put sexual ideas in children's minds that they otherwise would not have had. This, he said, could lead to children experimenting with sex.

Beard said, "The only viable program against AIDS. Unless schools take a biological approach, the issue is left out of the public education."

Beard also said that elementary-school children should be taught about

AIDS?

Beard says no. Children at that age are not prepared to deal with topics of that nature, he said. When people begin to teach young children things like this, "little kids can't even be kids anymore."

Ray Harrison, principal of Rock Canyon Elementary School is also unsure whether this is an appropriate subject for elementary-aged children. While the children are taught about the maturation process of the human body in elementary school, Harrison questioned whether a discussion about AIDS would fit in that curriculum.

He feels, however, that this issue is important and must be studied extensively before a decision on curriculum content is made.

Beard said that parents should take an active role in the process of AIDS education in the schools.

Weight also felt that this was important in order to have the needs of parents met. "There is no reason why parents can't be involved in the curriculum decisions. We have typically had parents on these committees when we make curriculum decisions so their needs can be heard," he said.

While 94 percent of the people surveyed agreed that AIDS education is important in school, none of them felt that the school system should be solely responsible for teaching children about AIDS. Most felt that there is a great responsibility upon the family and churches too.

Tharon E. Richins, branch president of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in Orem, said that communication and love are the keys to teaching correct principles about AIDS. He said that if parents show adequate love to their children, they will be able to talk openly with their children about it, and that children will not hesitate to come to their parents when they have questions or problems.

Utah's flora gets write-up

By KIMBERLY HYMAS
Universe Staff Writer

Stanley L. Welsh, director of the Monte L. Bean Museum, has put the knowledge from his 27 years of experience in researching Utah's plant life into a book called "A Utah Flora."

The publication is the first comprehensive treatment of the plants of Utah and is filled with practical information, according to Welsh.

"I started it 27 years ago when I first came to BYU," he said. "I could see expansion in the Utah area so I set out with my students to collect species of plants before the industrial expansion."

"A Utah Flora" combines the efforts of more than 1,400 contributors including professionals and students. Welsh and his graduate students have worked on the project together — adding about 300,000 specimens to the collection and naming 100 new species.

In order to obtain all possible specimens, Welsh and his associates had to gather data from all 29 counties in Utah. "We've been everywhere in other methods; they are mostly unsuccessful.

Once the tick is removed, wash the area with soap and water, apply rubbing alcohol and a cold pack. Apply calamine lotion to reduce itching.

• Poison ivy, oak, and sumac: Remove clothing and wash the affected area three times with soap and water. Wipe the skin with a rubbing alcohol-soaked cloth.

To relieve itching take a hot bath or shower or apply calamine lotion. If the itching or rash is severe, seek medical attention.

• Fishhook removal: If there are embedded barbs and a medical facility is nearby, have a doctor remove the hook.

If medical attention is unavailable, there are two solutions:

1. Push the hook through until the barbs are exposed. Then using wire cutters, clip the barbs off and pull the hook back through the place it entered the skin.

2. Loop a piece of fish line over the hook and bring it down to the curve of the hook. Press down on the hook and push it toward the place it entered parallel to the skin. At the same time, with the other hand, pull the hook with the fish line toward the place it went in. The hook will come neatly out of the same place it entered.

• Animal bites: If the skin has been broken, flush the wound with soap and water. Apply direct pressure to control bleeding and seek medical attention.

If the animal is not wild, notify animal control or the police. If possible, observe the animal for 14 days to make sure it does not have rabies.

Utah, from the top of King's Peak to the bottom of Beaver Dam," said Welsh.

Welsh compares the nature of his work to the complexity of the great symphonies. "They start with a theme, and then branch off. We start with a theme and then we move on. It's very complex."

According to Welsh, cataloging the species and data entry took two years to complete. "If I had known 20 years ago what I know now, I never would have attempted it. It was my whole professional career."

"It's a lifetime landmark for our university," said Jerran T. Flinders, BYU chairman of botany and range science. "It's the kind of work that will be around for 20 years and will be useful."

The book was finished in March after Welsh and his associates finally had to find an ending point. "It will never really be finished," said Welsh. "You have to quit somewhere."

Since publication, Welsh and his associates have found new species which will be recorded in other documents similar to "A Utah Flora."

Festival hosts top performers

By REBECCA HARRISON
Universe Staff Writer

The 11th annual Utah Arts Festival, taking place June 24-28 at the Triad Center in Salt Lake, will feature a variety of nationally known musical performers.

Among these performers are country music's Nanci Griffith, the acoustic sound of the Roches (pronounced "roaches") and jazz musician Michael Brecker, a tenor saxophonist who has played for such well-known musicians as Bruce Springsteen, James Taylor and Frank Sinatra.

Griffith, a native of Texas, has been singing country music professionally for the past 10 years. She has developed a solid reputation as a performer and songwriter through her frequent tours of clubs and festivals in the Northeast and Midwest.

Griffith made her first album in 1978, and in 1986, after signing with MCA Records, she made the album "Lone Star State of Mind." She has had country-music-chart success with her song "Once in a Very Blue Moon."

Griffith's story-songs focus on characters rather than events. Her lyrics involve images of people in the process of discovering themselves. She has been admired for her sensitive singing style and her songwriting abilities.

Possessing quite a different musical sound from Griffith's are the Roches, a group of three "sisters" who got their musical start by singing on the streets of New York at Christmastime. When Christmas came and went, they continued singing and became quite sought after by club owners.

In 1978, the Roches were signed to Warner Bros. Records, and since that time have made three albums. Their latest record is called "Another World."

The Roches have toured throughout Europe and America. Their music emphasizes a blend of unique harmonies, lyrical humor and fresh instrumentation.

Brecker's sound is jazz. Born in

The Roches, a group of three sisters with tight harmonies and clear singing styles, are among the many performers who will be at this year's Utah Arts Festival.

Philadelphia, he listened to jazz greats such as Miles Davis and Clifford Brown, and was inspired by them while in his teens.

He attended Indiana University for a brief time before heading for New York at the age of 18 to pursue a career in music.

In the late 60s, Brecker, with three other individuals, formed the band Dreams.

Dreams' two albums are now seen as documents in the fusion of rock and jazz music.

In the early 70s, Brecker began touring and recording all over the world, and then quickly emerged as the pre-eminent studio saxophonist of his generation. His music can be heard on nearly 400 albums.

Currently, Brecker is working on his first solo album. "I'm trying to make a record with some depth to it — and some mystery," said Brecker, according to a Warner Bros. press release. "One that bears more than one listening."

Other musicians featured at the festival will be James Scott, Hunter Davis and other local performers.

In addition to these musical performers, the festival will feature other events and attractions.

For example, there will be dance performances by The Repertory Dance Theatre and Ballet West.

Also, festival participants and local media will be invited to participate in a "video treasure hunt."

The Children's Art Yard, crafts demonstrations, food booths, a literary arts project and 70 visual arts booths are other highlights.

"We're looking forward to a festival that combines some of the new with the old favorites," said Linda Bonar, executive director of the Utah Arts Festival.

BYU has strong Sundance connection

By RANDALL L. BECKHAM
Universe Staff Writer

This year's Sundance Summer Theater's production of "Annie," which opened Friday night, has a strong BYU connection.

Charles Metten, professor of theater is guest director this year. Metten, who has been at BYU for 25 years, has directed over 150 productions at the university.

This is the first time in several years that a BYU faculty member has been invited to direct a play at Sundance. Dee Winterton, a former BYU faculty member, is credited by Metten and others for having started the Sundance Summer Theater in 1970. He directed and choreographed productions from 1972 to 1982, before he was killed in a car accident.

"I was fortunate to know Jayne Luke, the producer of the Summer Theater, who called and extended an invitation," said Metten. Luke is a BYU graduate and was one of Metten's students.

Luke will direct "Seven Brides For Seven Brothers," which will begin July 11, and be shown on alternate nights in conjunction with "Annie."

Metten, who has had prestigious training in performances at the American Conservatory Theater in San Francisco and at the American Film Institute, is scheduled to direct the 1988 Hill Cumorah Pageant.

He said that his direction at Sundance is a highlight in his career. "The scenery here in the mountains is quite different than what I am used to when directing. To be able to practice and perform in the midst of all this natural beauty gives actors an ability to perform in ways impossible with inside stage settings."

Auditions started the beginning of May and rehearsals began the second week of June. "Because of the distance to get here, we usually have rehearsals that last all day," said Metten, referring to the short period of time from the beginning rehearsal to opening night. "I think it's the outdoor environment that helps us to be able to work longer hours," he said.

Kelsi Osborn, of West Valley City, Utah, said the practice sessions are long and hard. "I take walks with other cast members in the forest when it's not my turn to be critiqued," she said. "It helps me relax."

Osborn has performed in both school and church productions, but this is her first professional acting experience. "I just love to be in front of people," she said.

Marvin Payne, who plays Oliver Warbucks, agreed. "Acting amidst the trees and wildlife gives me a feeling of closeness to God. I'm able to perform with great sensitivity to those around me," he said.

Payne, who also is a BYU graduate, has recorded 12 albums of original songs, performed as Charlie in "Charlie's Monument" and played a leading role in "Saturday's Warrior." He recently finished work in the most recent film production of "Man's Search for Happiness" for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Horn Symposium enters second day

As The 19th Annual International Horn Symposium enters its second day on the BYU campus, performers from all over the world share their talents.

The symposium, which started yesterday and will continue through June 27, was hosted in West Germany last year. According to Gaylen Hatton, BYU music professor and director of the symposium, this is the first time the event is taking place in Utah, or the Northwest.

The symposium consists of performers, lectures and exhibits from many countries, including Sweden, Germany, France, England, Austria, Japan, Italy and Switzerland. The symposium will also host other special events.

The special events, all of which are open to the public, include an evening with the Utah Symphony Orchestra conducted by Maestro Joseph Silverstein.

Another event will be an afternoon and evening at Sundance Resort, with a barbecue, followed by a special concert featuring the Bavarian Brass "Almost" Horn Works Ensemble.

The symposium's concluding event will be at Temple Square.

Lavy's Robinson chosen first

NBA selects draft choices

NEW YORK (AP) — David Robinson and Tyrone Bogues, 22 inches apart in height, were separated by only 11 selections in the NBA draft Monday.

The 7-foot-1 Robinson, as expected, was the No. 1 pick by San Antonio despite the liabilities of a 3-year Naval commitment and uncertainly about how long the Spurs will retain the exclusive right to sign him.

The Washington Bullets, with the 12th pick, also ignored an obvious liability when they selected Bogues, a 5-3 guard from Wake Forest who will become the smallest player in the NBA. He will join a team that also has the tallest player, 7-7 Manute Bol.

Bogues also was the sixth guard taken in the first 12 picks, a radical change from last year when only two backcourt players were picked in the first 12.

A total of nine guards were taken in the first round, four more than last year. Of the first 27 picks, 12 were guards and four were centers.

Rod Thorn, the NBA's director of operations and a former player personnel director for Chicago, said the emphasis on guards is probably a one-year phenomenon.

"There were just more good guards available this year and the teams drafting high had more of a need for them," Thorn said.

Phoenix followed San Antonio's pick of Robinson with 6-9 Armon Gilliam of Nevada-Las Vegas, followed by a run of four guards in the next five picks.

New Jersey grabbed 6-5 Dennis Hopson, the Los Angeles Clippers took 6-7 Reggie Williams of Georgetown, Seattle selected 6-7 forward Scottie Pippen of Central Arkansas, Sacramento picked 6-3 Kenny Smith of North Carolina and Cleveland took 6-1 Kevin Johnson of California.

Two more guards, 6-7 Reggie Miller of UCLA and Bogues, were taken 11th and 12th after 6-11 center Olden Polynice was drafted by Chicago, 6-9 forward Derrick McKey of Alabama by Seattle and 6-10 forward Horace Grant of Clemson by Chicago.

Seattle later traded the rights to sign Pippen to Chicago for the rights to sign Polynice, who played in Italy last year after a college career at Virginia. Seattle also acquired a second-round pick in 1988 or 1989 and the option to swap first-round picks in 1988 or 1989 as long as they don't involve one of the first three picks.

After the Bullets made Bogues the 12th pick, the rest of the first-round selections were 6-10 forward Joe Wolf of North Carolina by the Clippers, 6-10 forward Tellis Frank of Western Kentucky by Golden State, 6-10 Jose Ortiz of Oregon State by Utah, 7-0 Chris Welp of Washington by Philadelphia, 6-4 Ronnie Murphy of Jacksonville by Portland, 6-3 Mark Jackson of St. John's by New York and 6-8 Ken Norman of Illinois by the Clippers.

Lavy's David Robinson grabs one of 25 rebounds that set a Naval Academy record for one game. The San Antonio Spurs selected him as the first pick in Monday's NBA draft.

Simpson finally dons the green

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Scott Simpson was surrounded by guys in green jackets, Masters champion.

It was when the 87th U.S. Open ended Sunday, the 31-year-old Californian possessed his first major golf title. His closing round of 2-under-par 69 in the Olympic Club's Lake Course won him a one-stroke victory over Watson, the two-time Masters champion.

Spain's Seve Ballesteros, another who has twice worn the traditional green jacket presented to Masters champions, finished five strokes behind Simpson in third place.

Simpson actually surprised I won it, to the truth," Simpson said.

Watson was disappointed but not surprised at the outcome.

"Scott Simpson is a very fine golfer. He's proven he can come from behind and that he can win on tough golf courses. Does it surprise me? No," Watson said.

Simpson made three consecutive birdies starting at the 14th hole, going ahead to stay with his 15-foot putt for a 4 on the 609-yard 16th. He saved a par at No. 17 by coming out of a bunker and making a 10-foot putt, then parred the 18th to complete the tournament with a 3-under total of 277.

Watson had three bogeys on the first five holes but no more in his round of 70, which included three birdies. His 45-foot putt for a birdie on the 18th hole was about two inches short.

"I have to admit I was hoping it wouldn't go in. I didn't want a play-off," Simpson said.

If Watson's putt had dropped, the course would have had its third Open playoff in history. Jack Fleck beat Ben Hogan in a Monday showdown to settle the 1955 title, and Billy Casper beat Arnold Palmer in 1966.

"It felt good to be back in the hunt again," said Watson, who has gone almost three years without winning a tournament. "I have nothing to be ashamed about, but I am disappointed," he added.

Simpson won the NCAA golf title twice at the University of Southern California, joined the PGA tour in 1979 and has won three tour events, including this spring's Greater Greensboro Open.

The victory Sunday was worth $150,000 and jumped him from No. 9 to No. 1 on the tour's money-winning list, with season earnings of $465,896. Paul Azinger and Payne Stewart, the top two on the list last week, failed to make the cut in the Open.

Ballesteros battled to within one stroke of the lead midway through Sunday's round, but fell back with bogeys on the 12th and 13th and finished with a 71 for his total of 282.

At one point there was a four-way tie for first involving Simpson and three Masters winners — Watson, Ben Crenshaw and current champ Larry Mize.

Keith Clearwater, part of BYU's 1981 NCAA championship team, who matched the course record with a 64 on Saturday, fell from second place to a 31st finish by shooting a 79.

in outlasts the organizers at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The opening day of the 101st Wimbledon tennis championships was wiped out by rain without a ball being struck on any of the 18 grass courts.

After a gloomy, wet, overcast day at the All England Club, organizers announced late in the afternoon there would be no play, only the fourth time in the history of the Grand Slam tournament that the whole first-day program has been rained out.

The decision was a bitter disappointment for the thousands of spectators who had braved the wet conditions with their raincoats and umbrellas for a place in the stands.

It was before the cancellation was announced.

announced, Buzzer Hadingham, chairman of the All England Club, said a possible review of Wimbledon's timing might be considered to try and avoid similar rainouts in the future.

Wimbledon's grass signifies only one thing for Boris Becker and Martina Navratilova — success.

Becker has lifted the men's trophy the past two years, while Navratilova has carried off the women's title the past five years.

Tim Mayotte, Brad Gilbert and Jimmy Connors are the three biggest American hopes for the men's championship in the absence of John McEnroe, who pulled out because of a back injury.

Alaskan monument honors WW II dead

ATTU ISLAND, Alaska (AP) — Americans and Japanese are working together to erect a monument to the thousands of soldiers from both sides of the Pacific who died here in the only World War II battle fought on North American soil.

The battlefield is a national historic landmark. Attu lies about 2,000 miles southwest of Anchorage at the end of the Aleutian Islands chain.

Japan occupied Attu in June 1942, killing one man and taking 43 Aleuts captive. Many died while being held prisoner in Japan. The Japanese briefly withdrew from the island but returned in October. American forces attacked on May 11, 1943. The United States retook the island in a 19-day fight, but suffered 3,829 casualties, including 549 dead.

U of U gets new tuition-payment policy

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Incoming students at the University of Utah will face two major changes in class registration this fall, including a liberalized tuition payment policy, school officials say.

L. Kay Harward, university registrar, said the current policy requiring tuition payments two weeks before classes start will be scrapped. Beginning with the upcoming autumn quarter Sept. 25, tuition will be due by the Friday before classes begin. A 10-percent late fee will be charged on tuition paid after that date.

The other change is that classes confirmed during telephone registration will no longer be automatically dropped if students do not pay tuition by the due date. For fall quarter, students will need to drop courses officially by Oct. 9 or they will be required to pay full tuition and a late fee.

There is also no automatic process that drops students from classes they do not attend. "Your schedule now remains intact even if you've not paid tuition by the deadline or if you do not attend classes once school begins," Harward said.

Students who register for fall quarter and are unable to attend any of their classes must also contact the registrar's office to officially withdraw from school. They will be responsible for paying tuition for any classes on their schedule after Oct. 9.

Students who do not register by telephone may take advantage of late registration beginning Sept.
28, but must pay a $20 service charge to register.
The tuition payment deadline for late registration is Oct. 23.

Gorbachev calls for disarmament

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev on Sunday accused the West of "a deficit of realistic policy" and called on Western leaders to make an initiative toward disarmament.

After casting his ballot in single-candidate elections for local governing bodies, the Communist Party chief approached reporters gathered outside the polling place and asked them to bring his views to the world's attention.

"They call upon us in the Soviet Union to do something else, to do more," Gorbachev said, referring to Western leaders. "But I must say that today the Soviet leadership sees that there are many words from the West, but not many concrete steps."

He contended the West has done little in response to numerous arms control initiatives advanced by Soviet negotiators.

"We are prepared to cooperate with all forces. But there is a deficit of realistic policy in the West," he told about 50 journalists, mostly from Western countries. "They are only concerned with how to save face."

"But concrete steps are necessary on the road toward a more healthy situation, to avoid nuclear war and violence, to broaden cooperation."

Soviet and U.S. officials have said the two sides are close to an agreement at arms talks in Geneva that would eliminate medium-range missiles from Europe and pave the way for a third summit between Gorbachev and President Reagan.

'Y' alumna is Ms. Wheelchair Utah

By CHRISTINE KILLIAN
Universe Staff Writer

A former BYU student became the 13th Ms. Wheelchair Utah last weekend at the Provo Excelsior Hotel.

Dixie Mitchell, a Salt Lake City resident, said that by holding the title she would hopefully show that "the disabled want to be contributors in society, not to sit back and have others take care of us."

Mitchell, who has been a paraplegic since she contracted polio at age one, received a bachelor's and a master's degree in speech pathology from BYU.

She also met her husband, Tom, while at BYU. "I was a reader for the blind, and was assigned as a reader for Tom," she said. "I kept asking him what good movies were playing, and he finally got the hint." They now have two adopted Vietnamese daughters. She has worked as a medical transcriber and owns her own transcribing business.

She also said that if it weren't for her husband's support and encouragement she might not have entered the pageant.

She said one of the nicest aspects about being in the pageant is the amount of learning contestants gain. The pageant was held June 18-21.

During those days the women attended workshops on topics such as believing in personal potential for success, which was given by Roice Krueger, of Stephen R. Covey and associates.

Krueger told the women he had thought of changing his routine speech, which he has given to many businessmen across the country. "Then I realized that we all face the same challenges as individuals," he said, and he used the same speech.

Phyllis Jacobsen came to the pageant with three assistants to teach "Armchair Aerobics." Jacobsen, who is chairwoman of the BYU dance department, said she became aware of the need for an adapted aerobics program through the injury of a friend, and also through association with disabled students.

The important thing to remember is "whatever your difficulty might be, realize that the body can be improved with proper exercise," said Jacobsen. She and her assistants demonstrated several individual exercises, along with three routines the contestants could use to increase the heart rate and strengthen the torso.

Jacobsen encouraged the women to "get together as a group in the community and become a part of this physical aspect of life."

The contestants learned about "Meeting the Media" from Peggy Fugal, who has been a communications instructor at BYU. Fugal emphasized the types of questions they were going to be asked as Ms. Wheelchair, and said they would likely focus on their individual experiences and opinions.

The contestants also received expert advice on wardrobe and make-up during the pageant.

John Belushi's grave still draws visitors

CHILMARK, Mass. (AP) — Five years after his death, John Belushi's fans continue to file past his grave, marked by a streaked boulder that says simply, "Belushi."

"It's surprising how many teens come, how many college kids, because they were little when he was big," says Basil Welch, caretaker of the Abel's Hill Cemetery.

Dozens of shells from the beaches on this island of Martha's Vineyard surround the 5-foot gray-blue marker, streaked with green and pink.

The comedian, famous for his antics on NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live" and in the movies "Animal House" and "The Blues Brothers," died of a drug overdose at age 33 on March 5, 1982.

Up to 40 Belushi fans travel the quiet, winding road to the cemetery each day in the summer, says Welch. Some leave mementos, others only footprints in the dust and grass.

Kathy Garcia of Salt Lake City was the first runner-up. Garcia, who has had 14 foster children, works as a patient representative at LDS Hospital in Salt Lake.

She said a lack of understanding and education of the public are major causes of discrimination against the disabled.

Janell Hall of Layton, currently a student at Weber State College majoring in mathematics, was the second runner-up. Hall, who has multiple sclerosis, said that the most important thing she learned from the pageant is that there are other women her age who are going through the same experiences she is.

She said having her disability has helped to bring out her personality and her ability to talk to others.

Each of the contestants was responsible for obtaining her own sponsors to take care of the $150 entrance fee for the pageant.

The pageant is not a beauty contest, but is used to emphasize the individual accomplishments, capability and productivity of mobility-impaired women.

Diane Ellingson, Ms. Wheelchair Utah 1986, said her responsibilities have included speaking at youth firesides and sacrament meetings. She said that perhaps the most frightening speeches she gave were to the Utah state Senate and House of Representatives about architectural and attitudinal barriers the handicapped face.

"I was surprised at the different atmospheres of the House and Senate," Ellingson said. "At the House, everything was chaos and I wondered if anyone was listening. At the Senate, all eyes were on me and there was dead silence."

Ellingson, a former all-American gymnast from the University of Utah, was injured while warming up for a competition on the balance beam.

She currently is an elementary-school teacher in Salt Lake.
